CONTENTS

Genealogists' Magazine

- 131 Tracing Ancestors in Oxfordshire's Second Town: Fifty Years of the Banbury Historical Society - Jeremy Gibson FSG (Hon)
The doyen of family history demonstrate how many records are available for an important market town, especially if there is an enthusiastic local society to publish them.
- 141 The Commander-in-Chief's Memoranda at the National Archives - Jeremy Goldsmith
The basic dates of commission are easily available from the Army List. This article explains the background correspondence which gives the whys and wherefores.
- 147 Writing Home - Henry Snoad
19th century emigration did not bring down an Iron Curtain between those who left and those who stayed. One letter, kept by the descendants in England, not only gives a vivid picture of one family's farming life in Civil War America but gives clues to other emigrants who might not otherwise have been noticed.
- 149 New Developments in Medieval Genealogy - M. L. Bierbrier
It is estimated that 3 million English people and 40 million Americans are descended from King Edward I. His ancestry may well be your ancestry.
- 151 Discussing the Fiancée - E. M. Delafield (1890 – 1943) Punch, reprinted: As Others Hear Us (1937).
Meeting the family of your intended is one of the most stressful things any of us go through. Usually everybody smiles - but what are they really thinking?
- 152 Genealogical notes from the document collection 'Yale' at SoG
Odd notes on a paper bag - but the paper bag itself is part of someone's family history!
